

HARRIS RESIGNED TO FATE.HE HAD A POUND OF ARSENIC, PROTESTS FROM CITIZENS.

The Doomed Poisoner Refreshed by a Good Night's Sleep.

Young Lennig Took Enough of It to Kill Him.

Ready to Be Taken to Sing Sing to Await Its Execution.

His Motive Thought to Have Been Unrequited Love.

Cariyle W. Harris, in his cell in the Tomb this morning, chatted familiarly with several reporters who had called to see him, going over again many of the points which he brought out yesterday in his last plea before Recorder Smyth.

He seemed to have recovered from the exhaustion which followed his extraordinary effort in connection with his trial to-night. When he lay down to sleep he was at 7 o'clock and went to sleep he was completely broken down, set fatigued and nervous, but when he awoke at 6 this morning he looked and felt bright and fresher than he had done for many days.

"I am feeling as well as could be expected," he said to an "Evening World" reporter. "I have made my last effort and now I am resigned to whatever fate lies in store for me, conscious that I am innocent of the crime with which I am charged, and that the public itself does not believe me guilty."

"They say that those who have given a last opportunity to speak for themselves are often tortured afterwards with the thought that they neglected many points which they might have made if they had been given more time. Of course, I might have spent two or three hours more in reviewing the evidence brought up in the trial, but it was not necessary, for I think I brought out all the main points, as I had intended to do, and I am glad that the newspapers have given weight to my statement."

"I have nothing more to say in regard to the decision of the court or any of its orders, but I care not about the probable results, as any result that may be made to grow. Flower by my name."

"They have not told me yet whether they are going to let me go to Sing Sing, but I suppose it will be today or tomorrow."

"I wish to say, however, that I am not engaged in writing any biography of myself, and do not intend to do so, as I have no time to have all my affairs arranged by this evening. There is very little for me to do, as I have all my papers to go to up to Sing Sing and await my sentence."

"Harris took very care, however, and never forgot anything whatever he once told, when aluding to points in his case in a joking sort of manner, he would attempt a smile, and then say, 'I am not going to be merriment,' he said, smiling greatly, and that was the way in which I seemed to gain the sympathy of most everyone who was against me, and that possibly I might not be permitted to say all I wanted to say."

"Harris' last words were, 'Good-bye, once more, as I went on, for I felt that I was being listened to attentively."

Harris returned to his mother this afternoon for the last time in this city. Since yesterday she has been staying with friends in Brooklyn, and it is reported that she is so posted that she can hardly leave the house.

At the office of Howe & Hammill his morning call was said to be an appearance, and he would not leave next Tuesday. Mr. Howe did not propose to ask the governor to appoint a commission to examine the affidavits presented by Mrs. Harris, but he would take the witnesses to Albany with him and strengthen his appeal by their testimony.

It is said that they are on the track of additional evidence to show that the wife of Harris was a morphine-taker, and that several affidavits will be presented to the court to that effect.

In order to reach all some of the lectures will be delivered in German, Hebrew and Italian. The lectures will be practical and given in a clear, forcible language, twice or thrice a week, with the aid of a translator, who will be present to interpret the lectures for the benefit of Mrs. Harris.

Several lawyers have also written that they think Harris should have been granted a new trial.

NEW YORK BOY SURRENDERS.

Morris Tells the Chicago Police He Is Wanted Here for Forgery.

CHICAGO, March 21.—John Morris, seventeen years old, left the Central Station last night and asked to be locked up. He said:

"I was born in Brooklyn, and lived with my parents until last Fall. A year ago my father obtained a position as a boy for me with Alexander White, wholesale dealer in fancy goods and notions, at 475 Broadway, New York.

"I had the confidence of my employer, and two months ago I took advantage of that fact and forged his name to a check for $20.

"The check I took to the office of the Stork Coal Company, at Fulton street and Liberty, was cashed, and I received $20 on it, that being the entire amount of money on hand at the time. With the money I came to Chicago."

"I have not been able to get a good time and now I am penniless. I have not eaten a thing for two days. I am a fugitive from justice for the forged and am willing to go back."

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

To an "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White said it was true that he had paid his boy $20, but that he would make no effort to have him returned, as the Story Commission had recommended for the check, which had been cashed.

Morris was locked up and Sergeant Culver sent a despatch to the New York police.

An "Evening World" reporter this morning Alexander White